We have the opportunity of two mornings to see this lake in all its glory. There are also short hikes around the lake and stunning views and photographic opportunities.

Like its twin, Franz Josef, the Fox glacier descends from the Southern Alps down into temperate rainforest just 300 metres above sea level. To see the glacier, you can walk to the terminal face, arrange an ice-hiking adventure or book a sightseeing flight. There are also glow-worm caves just a short walk from the town centre. Anyone wishing to book a helicopter flight has the chance to do this as we have free time in the town during the day and also first thing the following morning if time permits.
